Deserting a Headless School

Professors are leaving the University of Nevada almost every day. They are going elsewhere to better their fortunes and to secure a greater meed of appreciation than was doled out to them in this state. Altogether nine of the most talented teachers of the state university have resigned within the last forty days and there is no telling how many more will follow in the footsteps of the men who have gone forth at higher salaries to preach the gospel of scientific farming.

The regents have no one but themselves to blame for this disheartening state of affairs. For years the agricultural college has been tolerated merely because it was a means to an end. That end was the shameful one of securing from the federal government an annual appropriation that very frequently went to the fostering of liberal arts and other branches of study not contemplated by the government in making the appropriation. Men of ability who accepted engagements in the University found they were nothing more than a lot of barnacles attached to the ship of state and that they had nothing to expect in the way of future preferment. There was nothing to the appointments but entering on a stage of dry rot that was distasteful to men of brains and ambition who came to a young state where they expected an opportunity to shine in their chosen field of endeavor. That their services were needed goes without further saying, but when it came to appreciation, they found that element lacking, especially among the lawmakers who doled out funds with the celerity of a miser parting with his last penny. Men in the professions unfortunately have little of the grasping avarice that characterizes other branches of employment. Gratitude and a sense of public requital goes a long way with such people. In the experience of the faculty of the University of Nevada there appears to have been very little money and positively no recognition.

A sample of the appreciation was shown by a legislator from Elko county who was urged to be liberal in according the college funds for experimental work.

"Settlers are coming in by thousands, and if we only give the agricultural college some encouragement, the number of homeseekers will be greatly increased," was the argument used.

"Let the fools come. When they get tired monkeying with their dry farming and pumping water I will buy back all their lands at fifty cents an acre," was the crushing rejoinder.

This is a sample of the highbrow encouragement the faculty of the University of Nevada have had to contend with. That they have grown weary of converting such brainy intellects to their point of view is forgivable. Life is too short. The people of California, Nebraska, Alberta, Oregon and Washington think differently. In every case where they have hired a Nevada man they have taken him at an advance of from fifty to three hundred per cent of the salary he was receiving here. And the poor fellows will not have to go down on their knees to beg for payment of salaries.

Even the pigs and cows of the university farm revolt at the treatment accorded them. Last winter the champion cow that won more ribbons than any other milker at the Salt Lake and Sacramento Interstate fairs was allowed to die from pneumonia because she had nothing better than a ramshackle old shed open to the weather on two sides and with a leaky roof to protect her Royal Ribs. Even this old shed did not belong to the state but the state was allowed by sufferance to occupy it. Last week a prize pig, the noblest of his race, passed away, a victim of the heated tent and a compliment to the regents who could not afford to build a suitable pen to the comfort of such a valuable animal.

This system of doing business may be economy in the eyes of some penny pinching politicians but the public is likely to take another view of it.

Either a Liar or a Gaffer

Martin H. Mulhall, who is playing a star engagement before the senate investigation committee, is something of a gaffer himself, if you are to accept his word for what he has done. He played both ends of the board against the middle and scored every time. Or he is another Ananias, the forebear of Joe Mulhattan, a Texas drummer, who had such a vivid imagination that he made a fortune out of peddling yarns for the newspapers and gave up peddling dry goods. One of his discoveries was an aerolite that landed down in the Pecos country and plowed through three villages and maiming every man, woman and child in its path. Joe was a fervid writer and perhaps, when it comes to a show-down Mr. Mulhall will be another gentleman of exaggerated ego.

Good Inspection

Appropos of this warm weather the Bonanza would gently suggest to Governor Oddie the propriety of incorporating in his call for a special session a measure providing for the appointment of food inspectors in all towns of your population. It is not uncommon for various lots of inferior fruits and vegetables, delayed on the road through weeks of other accidents, to be placed on sale without regard to the pestilence. It is not too late to set this summer. If you have any doubt about it the Bonanza can assure you that there is plenty of warm weather ahead.

Mockery of Retrenchment

If there is one more touching incident about the Woodrow Wilson administration than the feeble efforts to mock economy it is time for some friend of the Jersey man to say so. The job of United States marshal in the district of Nevada has always been considered something of a sinecure at $2500 a year, but Key Pittman thinks that is not enough for the dignity of the office and he had another thousand tacked on the salary of A. B. Gray, former populist and recent democrat who hooked his chariot to the Pittman machine last fall. Wonder how much the job would stand if there was anything to do?

The democrats of Nevada are manifesting as much decency about grabbing the fleashpots as one would expect to see manifested by the heirs of a millionaire at the funeral. The latest reform is to decree that advertising for land patents must appear in democratic newspapers. Republican editors are not to have a look in. Under the republican system the question of advertising was always left to the attorneys who paid the bill. They were told to nominate their own paper.

It turns out that Indiana is not so erudite as some people imagine. At least least in the education of the Hoosier state has depreciated rapidly in Oakland since the people of that burg learned that the Indiana auto manufacturers forgot to place the name of Oakland on the map which has been issued by that body of estimable gentlemen now touring the country.

How appropriate is the name of the Dollar Steamship line owned by Robert Dollar of San Francisco, may be surmised from the fact that the company will fly the Chinese flag for a consideration in shape of a substantial subsidy. This is one of the few lines which have maintained the Stars and Stripes for a generation. Score one for freetrade.

When tourists are told that Death Valley abuts on Nye county they should not forget that this county is a humdinger in size, equalling the area, equalling three or four small eastern states. Let it be known that Nye county measures 280 miles by 168 miles and the climate varies from intense cold to tropical heat. Tonopah weather is a happy medium.

Diamondfield Jack Davis is alive and kicking at Salt Lake where he has decided to locate for the future. People of southern Nevada will wonder if he was tamed sufficiently by the Mexicans to reduce the size and calibre of his arsenal. He says he is not coming back to Nevada. That's good, the world is not as bad as it might be.

Late fashion reports state barefoot walking is coming into vogue. This proves that there is nothing new under the sun. We had to do the barefoot act in the gladsome juvenile days and felt as proud of our own brown legs as the present day kid is of the cost of tan on his bare arms.

The dying request of the "human tiger" to the women of California is quite pathetic. Before he swung into eternity he begged them not to let up in their efforts to secure the abolition of capital punishment. Oh woman, what curious crimes are committed in thy name!

"Get rich quick" sales are what they are advertising in Reno to unload stocks left by the divorce colony. Printers ink and nerve will do a lot for any old town.

NOBODY CAN TELL IF YOU DARKEN GRAY FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA

Druggist Says When Mixed With Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Falling Hair.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, then left to age and carefully filtered will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home though is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's

Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss. Some druggists make their own, but it isn't nearly so nice as "Wyeth's."

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur you can tell because it does it so naturally; so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this tonight and by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, after another application or two it will be restored to its natural color and be even more glossy, soft and luxuriant than ever.
